COUPLE LEAVE MARION

Will Return Wednesday After License is Procured.

Ceremony will be Performed Just After Bride-to-be Answers to Intoxication Charge.

"She's a good kid, and I like her and if you will marry us we'll get tied up right away." said Charles Reiger, a moulder from Ashland, as he walked into the mayor's private office arm in arm with Dell Humphries, an Ashland woman who has figured quite prominently in police court circles during the past week.

Dell was released from custody this morning after Reiger put up $5 for her appearance tomorrow morning in court. It was about two hours later that they returned and wanted to be married.

The mayor informed the pair that they would have to get a Beense from the probate judge before they could be married in his court. Probate Judge Foster informed them that they would have to get their license at Ashland, and thoroughly disappointed, they returned to call on the mayor. A short time later they took the train for Ashland to get their to schedule they will be married in the police court tomorrow morning at nine o'clock, a few minutes after the case against the woman who is charged with drunkenness is conclud-

Dell first became prominent here last week when she was found out on Sharp street lying on the sidewalk n a state of helpless intoxication. She was released and ordered out of the city. She returned Sunday and yesterday was locked up on the same harge.

The woman told the mayor the henceforth she intends to be good, for several weeks but that she would never drink any more. "Charley is the caudy and I'm going to stick to him. He got me out of this scrape and treated me white and I'm his." Dell Humphries was in the next cell to Mabel Nelson at the city prison and during the night they became good friends. This morning Dell wanted Charlie to also stand for Mabel's appearance in court, or to pay her fine, but Charlie could not be brought to that turn of mind. "I seen her smoking cigarettes," said Charles, "and I won't pay no fine for no woman that smokes them things."

Unless all signs fail, the big firebell at the city prison will be the wedding bell for Charlie and Dell Mansfield today transacting legal and the wedding march will be played by one of the officers on a mouth
